

Rangers Designate Jan. 19 For All-School Celebration

Convo to Present Range Talent

Thursday, Jan. 19, has been proclaimed "Ranger Day". The event, sponsored by the Rangers' club, is the first of its kind in the history of UMD.

An 11 a. m. convocation with range talent and Bill Johnson as master of ceremonies and a dance in the evening will furnish entertainment for all UMD students.

A four-piece orchestra will play for the dance, which will be held from 8 to 11 in the gymnasium. The dance is informal and students may attend either in couples or stag. Refreshments will be sold.

"Ranger Day" is under the direction of general chairman, Dave Dye. Committee heads are Bill Johnson, convocation; Bill Minelli, stage, and Harold Ikola, music.

The Rangers' club is a social organization with a membership comprised of students who have either gone to school or lived on the Range. The present officers are Herb Schur, president; Jim Rolando, vice-president; Marcia Maki, secretary, and Millie Borg, treasurer. Harry W. Johnson is the adviser.

Faculty Approves Machinery For Recognition of Social Clubs

As a result of action taken by the faculty at a meeting Dec. 8, 1949, social organizations will not be objected to on campus providing the following restrictions prevail: the organization is approved by the OSPS; there is no national affiliation; and there are no restrictive clauses regarding membership in the constitutions.

This action does not recognize sororities and fraternities as such, but merely makes it possible for these organizations to gain official recognition.

The application for recognition is first presented to the Student council. After it is approved by the Student council it is presented to the Student personnel committee of the faculty for final action. To qualify for recognition each organization must present its purposes, constitution and by-laws, list of officers, list of members, the written consent of the faculty adviser, and written agreement to abide by the rules and regulations of UMD.

Bradford Relates European Experiences at Convo

"I have been persecuted for 20 years as a Jew. I have been beaten and spit on for being a Jew. How could such a thing have happened when I was really a Gentile?" These statements describe the experience of Robert Bradford who spoke at the convocation, Jan. 10. His speech was entitled "Tolerance and Freedom."

Adopted by a wealthy family and raised in the Jewish in the French underground. He was captured, beat and tortured by the Gestapo.

After the liberation of Paris, Bradford worked with the American army until he came to this country three years ago.

Bradford uses the experience of his 20 years of unknown identity to illustrate the fact that there is no difference between a Jew and a Gentile.

"Five minutes after I learned I was a Gentile, I decided to go on being a Jew. I could not cross the line into the Gentile world. To all intent I am still a Jew."

ROBERT BRADFORD

faith and traditions, Bradford was 20 years old before he learned that he was born a Gentile of Christian parents in Breslau, Germany.

During the years that he spent in Germany as a Jew, Bradford saw the rise of Hitler, experienced the terror of the Nazis and saw his father die in 1936 as a result of brutal beatings.

With the death of his father and confiscation of all their property he escaped with the help of a friend to Paris where he became an officer

Woodchopper's Ball Set for Tonight

Sigma Iota Epsilon, the industrial arts fraternity, will hold its second annual "Woodchopper's Ball" tonight in the Medical Arts ballroom from 9 until 12.

Lloyd Hawley and his orchestra will provide music for the informal dance. The price is $1.00 per couple.

Co-chairmen in charge of the dance are Henre Sullivan and Robert Lehman.

Chron Sets Photography Schedule

The photography staff of the Chronicle, with Cliff Moran in charge, will begin taking group pictures of all official UMD clubs on campus next Wednesday, Jan. 18, in the auditorium.

If there are conflicts between the following schedule and classes, each student should make individual arrangements with his instructor subject to approval of the division chair. See CHRON, page 3

Pierce Opens Speech Clinic Here

"The cooperation and spirit of interest that has been displayed by the administration and various divisions are most encouraging to me," recently stated Robert F. Pierce, new faculty addition to UMD's speech department. Mr. Pierce added that with patience and understanding an active, well-rounded speech and hearing rehabilitation program can be developed.

Students with dialects will be offered a non-credit speech improvement course this quarter. It is to include instruction in phonetics, rate, rhythm and inflexion of American speech.

Officially beginning spring quarter will be courses in voice science, speech and hearing rehabilitation and individual clinic work. Mr. Pierce will head this program.

Graduating from Northern Illinois State teachers college and the University of Wisconsin, Mr. Pierce has received his B. E. and Ph. M. degrees. He is now in the process of earning a Ph. D. from the University of Wisconsin where he has also taught speech correction.

USING AN AUDIOMETER, right, is Robert Pierce, UMD's new speech pathologist. Recipient of the attention is Lawrence LaFave, psychology major. Mr. Pierce will make use of such devices in his program of hearing rehabilitation. —(Photo by Hall)

Alexander Pope Said It . . .

For over two years now the STATESMAN has been running in its mast-head the phrase, "Statesman, yet friend to truth; of soul sincere." Until our "foreign correspondent", Dick Graving, returned from Colombia, South America, we didn't know the origin of the motto.

Dick, who was editor at the time UMD's "Fortnightly Chronicle" became the STATESMAN, says it's strictly for the classics—a couplet by Pope.

So Tough, But Oh—So Gentle . . .

Perhaps the piston ring manufacturers will forgive our borrowing their phrase. "Tough, but oh—so gentle" is a good description of the "M" club members who threw a big Christmas party for the boys from the 15th Avenue Children's Home. Sully Smith played Santa for the kids after a program and swimming. Ed Berry was in charge of the party which was held at the boys' "Y".

Advance Notice . . .

Mark down Jan. 31 in your date book. The University band will present its first concert on that day. It's good listening and, besides, it's free!

Not free, but also good listening in the musical field is the entertainment the Crystal Terrace is bringing to Duluth beginning next week. Woody Herman and his sextet will be making mad music starting Jan. 16.

View Of Years Activities Sees Many Accomplishments

Large scale changes and improvements do not happen overnight. They take time and patience. As we go from quarter to quarter in the rush of everyday life, many major improvements go unnoticed.

Yet as we come to the end of the year and begin totaling up these improvements, we cannot help realize that this institution has made outstanding progress.

Let us take a glance at some Classy Quarters for Kappa Pi . . .

Members of the arty set now have their own club room in the basement of Tweed. Kappa Pi members have been busy redecorating their new retreat so that one wall is Scottish plaid and the other three are combinations of yellow and gray projections. The floor is red. Slide down there some day and have a look.

Reet Treat . . .

The first winter quarter convo was presented by the Mormon orchestra. Their fine musicianship and unassuming attitude made a big hit. The ten members of the orchestra are full time missionaries who have been touring the country for the last five months. They have traveled 9,000 miles, presented 220 programs to 40,000 people. They receive no salaries or donations for their work.

Statistics Dept. . . .

Latest official winter quarter enrollment figures show 1,861 students have enrolled, a drop of 79 over last quarter's total of 1940.

Seventy veterans dropped out after fall quarter and an additional 49 veterans enrolled at UMD for the first time, making the total number of veterans 683.

The Play's The Thing . . .

Ray Helgemoe and Phil Smith, UMD students, are among the cast of the Duluth Playhouse production, "Two Blind Mice." Rosemary Brandon, another UMD thespian, designed the set.

Ay! Ay! Si, Seniorita!

UMD "Hombre" Tours Colombia

By Toni Romano

"Si, Senior"

That may well be an inadvertent reply from Richard Graving, history senior, who has recently returned from a six-month visit in South America.

Graving went to Bogota, capitol of Colombia, to do research on "The Relations Between the Church and the State" for SPAN, Student project for the amity among nations. In the near future he will speak on this subject at a convocation.

Contrary to one of his popular South American concepts, the natives assured him of the folly in bloody revolutions and pistol-packing Pedros. In this day and age there is even a ruling against carrying firearms.

"I felt sure," stated Graving, "that South American political fracas was merely an exploitation of American newspapers. One day 300 representatives convened at the house of representatives to discuss some political issues.

"During the course of the heated argument one representative questioned another representative's lineage. Swearing revengeful oaths, the insulted politician suddenly drew a pistol and instantly 299 representatives crouched behind the most convenient cover with only noses and ends of "pistolas" peeking out.

"My conception of tranquil debates was permanently shattered."

On another occasion, while traveling from Bogota to Ibaque, a town not far from the capitol, an old diesel engine laboring up a mountain explosively backfired, and all the men in the car dove for the floor fearing boisterous campaigning.

Naturally, being a red-blooded American lad, Dick was not socially inert. His first date, which was mostly engineered by some Colombian friends, was indeed a memorable one.

When he went to pick up his date, the girl's father thoroughly interrogated him. Everything apparently suited the father, but when it was time to go, Dick was abashed to see the conscientious parent putting on his overcoat, preparing to accompany them.

However, there was some compensation for having such a devoted chaperon, because he paid not only the cab fares, but the theatre admission as well.

Graving found that Hollywood interpretation of a rumba, tango and samba dancing people was not supported by the foot fanciers of Colombia. The most popular dance proved to be "El Bote", which means the boat. The step procedure is an undulating affair depicting a rocking motor boat.

Schmooch Is a Promoter, McHuckster Ad Groaner

By Herbert Taylor

As we enter the second half of the twentieth century, it is our natural impulse to glance back at the past five decades and single out those men who have contributed the most to shaping our modern way of life. Many celebrities of the past enjoy a brief period of revived fame at this time, others, the unsung greats of the past, remain in obscurity. Two of the latter are Montag Schmooch and Beauregard McHuckster.

Much of the credit for the development of the automobile industry is given to Henry Ford and others, but perhaps a much greater figure is Montag Schmooch (1865-1923), who invented the back seat. Prior to this, cars had only front seats, and were devoted solely to commercial use. The back seat made the auto a romantic symbol of the great American dream of progress.

At last, love, like everything else, could be mechanized. Applications for drivers and marriage licenses increased in a direct and positive ratio. While Americans made time in the back seat, auto workers made time and a half in the factories. The institution of the back seat may have retarded the elimination of the clutch but in every other way it advanced the automotive era. Schmooch, the man, is forgotten, but his name is perpetuated in a vernacular expression which is an eternal monument to his genius.

The Judas Iscariot of the twentieth century is Beauregard McHuckster, a frustrated and unemployed crooner who invented the singing commercial. His first effort was aired over a major network on March 5, 1932. On that fateful day, McHuckster (who had formerly made his living in vaudeville, doing an act which consisted of accompanying himself on the ukelele with his prehensile feet, diapering a betsy-wetsy doll and singing "I Cover the Waterfront" simultaneously) stepped in front of a microphone and sang!

"If you smell and the girls don't love you—

Friend, don't give up hope,

Run to the store and buy a bar of Finklestein's patented aromatic soap."

The rest is history. Singing commercials became a universal practice in radio advertising, giving rise to thousands of nervous breakdowns, hundreds of suicides, several axe murders, three bank failures and a prediction of the end of the world in 1952 by a faith healer in Peoria.

Senator Flanders Voices Criticism Of State Department Propaganda

Criticism was leveled at the State department's propaganda machinery by Senator Ralph Flanders (R-Vermont) in a speech at an evening meeting in the auditorium last week.

Senator Flanders said that the State department had overlooked an effective propaganda means by not utilizing the dropping of leaflets by balloons. He also expressed his belief that the voice of America series should be granted increased financial support.

Following his speech Senator Flanders was guest at a reception given by the UMD Young Republican league in Tweed.

Music Seniors Present Recital

A senior recital held at Tweed hall last Sunday evening featured three compositions by Edward C. Mattila, a UMD senior music student. The composer was soloist for "Prelude" and "Allegro," his two short solos for piano. These works, in addition to a short modern quartet for clarinets, were written during this last year for class assignments in composition.

The program also included cello solos and a group of songs by Carlyn Johnson, soprano and cellist.

Assisting were Phyllis McEldowney, accompanist, and four clarinetists: Florence Kochevar, Paul Magney, Thomas Jacobson and William Diedrich.

Student Council Begins Activity

The first Student council meeting of 1950 was conducted last Tuesday evening with Lee Williams presiding.

Council members presented routine reports at the abrupt session.

Albert Johnson, survey committee chairman, reviewed the science building transit problem. After an experiment conducted with a transit, the bus was found to be impractical because the fifteen-minute break between classes was too short.

Through council efforts, three new reserved sections for UMD students were made available for basketball games.

Bulldogs Open Home MIAC Schedule Tomorrow

LOCKER-ROOM CHATTER

by DAVE DYE

Last week-end we were privileged to accompany the UMD basketball and hockey teams to St. Paul for their contests with St. Thomas. It was a very enjoyable trip but we returned with some rather bitter thoughts about officiating which dulled the lustre on the homeward journey. The problem of officials is a bad one, and will continue to be bad until better men enter the field, a step which will follow a higher remuneration for refereeing.

Officiating Questionable

In the afternoon hockey game, a gallant UMD sextet looked like the winner until the few vastly partisan rooters in the small crowd began to "call" the penalties, and two Bulldog skaters were sent to the penalty box, enabling the home-town team to tie and win the contest.

But this was only a prelude to the whistle-tooting which UMD was to be subjected to in the basketball game that evening. The Tommy team plays a rough brand of basketball, and apparently there is no such a foul as charging in St. Paul cage circles. To this reporter, and many other persons in the full house, numerous fouls called on UMD should have been assessed on St. Thomas for charging. Bill Christiansen, Paul Nace and Ed Westerhaus were ejected via the five-foul rule, while Dick Lundquist and Bud McDonnell were severely handicapped with four fouls each.

Another officiating point is best illustrated in a conversation following the game between UMD's Bud McDonnell and one of the officials.

Bud asked the official, "How many steps with the ball are allowed in this conference?"

"Two," was the curt reply.

"Well, then, how come you were allowing St. Thomas three steps on every drive-in shot?" queried the UMD guard.

And that is what the Tommies were doing, taking an extra push-off step not allowed on most basketball floors.

It is deplorable to go on athletic trips and be forced to put up with home-town officiating.

The consensus of opinion among the players on both the basketball and hockey squads was that if the games had been played at neutral spots, and under neutral conditions, both the sextet and the cagers would have returned home victorious. And this reporter emphatically shares that view!

IM Cagers Begin Pre-Tourney Play

The Intramural Basketball League has started action, playing games in four sub-leagues on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons as well as Tuesday evenings. There are 23 teams in the loop, with each team slated to play five games prior to the tournament in late February. A hot race is expected for the championship as many teams are strong.

UMD Loses to St. Thomas In Opening MIAC Tilt

The Bulldogs of UMD failed to win their opening MIAC game, but before bowing to a tall, aggressive St. Thomas five, by a 65-54 score, they served notice on the sports world that they were ready for competition with all members of the conference. Their inability to connect in the first quarter on shots from the floor cost the visitors a victory, as the Tommies ran up a 26-10 lead before the Bulldogs could accustom themselves to the strange floor and glass backboards.

Eugene "Pug" Norlander led the UMD five in scoring as he racked up 16 points, two less than Lloyd Sandstrom, who was the Tommies' offensive spark. Ed Westerhaus garnered nine points and Paul Nace followed with eight markers.

The huge Tommy forward line of Don Leyden, Wally Bauer and Ed Bury forced the invaders from Duluth to connect on long shots and prevented the feeding of center Rudy Monson for under-the-basket attempts at scoring. This was the only meeting of the two teams this season.

St. Mary's team last week to get off to a good start in the conference race.

The Bulldogs, on the other hand, dropped their initial conference game to a tall, aggressive St. Thomas aggregation. This game tomorrow could well determine the ultimate success or failure of the Bulldogs this season.

Coach Isenbarger will undoubtedly start the same squad which opened the season at St. Thomas. Ed Westerhaus and "Pug" Norlander are the forward mainstays, Rudy Monson cavorts from the center position, while Dick Lundquist and Paul Nace share the guard spots. Bill Christiansen has also been used a great deal at a guard position, while Bruce Budge sees action up front.

Leading the Gustie attack is Haldo Norman, who put on a one-man show last year when Gustavus played in the Armory. He plays at guard along with Red Rehwalddt. Andy Papke performs at the pivot, while Clint Perkins and Wally Brunswold hold down the forward spots. Myron Finn, ace forward from last year's St. Paul Humboldt state championship team also plays at forward on Coach Gus Young's squad. Gustavus plays the Johnnies of St. John's college in St. Cloud tonight.

Fems Start IM Basketball Play

Girls intramural basketball teams will begin a Round-Robin tournament for the championship and trophy on January 17 and will continue every Tuesday from 4 to 6 and every Thursday from 6 to 8. Four teams have been organized with 6 to 7 girls on a team. Team captains are Barbara Rotvig, Ella Johnston, Doris Peterson and Mary Ellen Hanson.

Any girl who wishes to play in the tournament may sign her name on one of the lists posted in the locker room.
